The Daily Union-Verdict.

THURSDAY MORNING, DEC. 1, 1864.

Maryland Unbound.

On Tuesday the 1st of November last, slavery ceased in Maryland. A State full and fertile as any in the Union only needed to be free to become as prosperous and happy.

Maryland has long owned a divided rule. Her climate, her geography, her national and moral interests, all bound her to the North; she was linked to the South by a social institution. But her tendency has been for half a century steadily towards freedom—nor could the prejudices of her people nor the tyranny of her slaveholders successfully oppose the inevitable gravitation. Maryland would have been freed by her own life of development—even had she not been emancipated by the war and the suicidal rebellion of slavery against the Government which gave it local protection.

Nor will it ever be forgotten that the cause has been thus early lifted from the State by the decision of her own patriotic soldiers. Her noblest citizens are doubly her saviors—they defended her from rebellion with her bayonets, and have freed her from slavery with her votes. November 1st, 1864, will hereafter be an anniversary of freedom to be kept sacredly. At least thirty thousand men and women, who were "chattel" formerly, are men and women now. All the North will rejoice in their liberation and will doubtless celebrate the event with fitting ceremonies. No Southern State is more dear to us than Maryland, and this divorce from slavery nationalizes forever with our progress and prosperity.

The intelligence from the seat of war, although being received piecemeal, yet sufficient can be gleaned from our dispatches to assure us of the determined march and resolute movement of Sherman with his heroic army of veterans. Indeed the desponding tone of the rebel press indicates their conviction that the advance of Sherman is inevitable, and that it will prove a crushing blow to their inhuman cause, and that no force of theirs can check the downfall of Macon, Savannah and Charleston—and in addition to the imminent peril of their situation, comes from them mourning accusations and bitter denunciations of Jeff. Davis, who is now counted as irresolute, and his speeches as fraught with false statements and empty meaning. In return he denounces his followers as inactive and backsliding—makes feeble and sickening appeals to deserters and moans over the acts of Stephens and Boyce. Resolutions with preambles have been produced and voted down. Nothing will effect but the final laying down of arms and submission which is sure to ensue.

RETURNING.—Brig.-Gen. Connor and Capt. Hempstead return tomorrow to Camp Douglas, near Salt Lake City, to arrange and perfect operations pertaining to the plan found most practicable for the future security of the great overland mail and immigration between the Missouri and the far West. The General was highly pleased with the progress of mining enterprise in Gilpin county, where he spent the last few days. He was surprised to see so many fine quartz mills, developments, and rich results; and doubts not that the future history of our Colorado gold hills will astonish the nation, and fill its Union coffers with such chunks and scads of the solid shining ore as will make New York and London capitalists' eyes water.

The General is a gentleman of severe sound sense, thoroughly military, and yet more unassuming than any of our 2d Lieutenants. Capt. Hempstead, of his staff, also betrays the common sense gentleman, as an editor general does that has had his experience.—Denver News.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

(SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION-VERDICT.)

Washington, Nov. 29th.

The rebel ex-Governor Roger A. Pryor, who was acting as a private soldier in the Confederate army, was captured last Friday by our pickets while attempting to exchange papers. This was done in retaliation for the recent capture of Captain Burbridge by rebel pickets. Pryor says Lee has issued an order for the return of Captain Burbridge on Saturday. Pryor will probably be returned as soon as Burbridge arrives. Since Pryor's capture, Burbridge has been dismissed from the army for disobeying the order forbidding the exchange of papers or holding intercourse with the enemy on any pretext. Pryor is now in Old Capitol Prison.

The news from the Army of the Potomac up to Sunday states that the usual picket firing was going on. Everything else was quiet, and considerable cannonading and picket firing in Butler's Department.

Baltimore, Nov. 29th.

The evening edition of the American publishes the following: The city is full of rumors to-day in relation to a raid on the line of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, but up to the time of going to press we have not been able to ascertain anything definite. One of the reports is that, New Creek has been captured by the raiders, and another is that, Piedmont is also in their hands. We only give these reports as current rumors and cannot vouch for their correctness. New Creek has been for some time strongly fortified, and if it has been captured we should have heard some of the particulars by telegraph.

The Commercial's Washington special says: Roger A. Pryor has just been escorted along Pennsylvania Avenue under guard, to the old Capitol. He wore a handsome uniform of grey, and nodded familiarly to old acquaintances.

Judge Bates has engaged ex-Attorney General Coffee to manage the Government cases before the next term of the Supreme Court.

The rebel Admiral Buchanan is to be sent to New York, and from thence to Fort Warren, Boston harbor.

The Commercial's Newbern correspondent says: A number of soldiers were buried in the ruins of a bridge that was blown up during the fire at that place on Saturday evening. They belonged to the 15th Connecticut, and were assisting in subduing the flames. This correspondent intimates that a movement co-operative with Gen. Grant, from North Carolina may be looked for.

Boston, Nov. 29th.

The article in the Boston Daily Advertiser this afternoon, in relation to the capture of the Florida, in which very strong ground is taken against the comments of the English press, and in which many English violations are quoted to show that the ship should not be given up, is understood to be from the pen of Senator Sumner.

New York, Nov. 29th.

In the rebel House of Representatives on the 25th, Leach of N. C., offered the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, The unfriendly interference of citizens of non-slaveholding States with the reserved rights of States was the cause of this cruel, bloody and relentless war; and whereas, the citizens of slave States, in an unguarded moment without mature deliberation as to the fatal consequences, made the election of Abraham Lincoln the occasion for precipitating the Confederate States out of the Union, followed by a fearful train of consequences; and whereas, we the Representatives of the people desire to place ourselves fearlessly before the civilized world as anxious to secure an honorable and permanent peace, therefore

Resolved, That any attempt to infringe upon the reserved rights of States should be resisted by all lawful means.

Resolved, That when the United States shall signify its willingness to recognize those rights, and guarantee citizens their rights of property as provided by the Constitution and laws of Congress, we will agree to treat for peace on such terms as may be agreed upon by Commissioners, or by States acting in their sovereign character, and ratified by a majority of the people, which shall constitute the bond of peace between the North and South.

Mr. Leach sustained the resolutions in a speech, and then they were voted down almost unanimously.

The army correspondent of the Tribune says: Guns have been sent to the front which will throw shells into Richmond from our nearest position. The shell is inflammable to an extraordinary degree, and it is thought the rebels will be burned out with them.

On the morning of the election a state-room on the Elm City, running between New York and New Haven, was found to be on fire, similar to the Hotel fires here. Three more arrests have been made, and hotel keepers have increased their risks to $20,000. An attempt to fire the International Hotel was made last night.

New York, Nov. 29.

Late rebel papers give additional information regarding Sherman's movements. They show the separate movements of the respective columns under Howard and Slocum. Both of them, it is admitted by rebel papers, are well across the Oconee river, and the report of the occupation of Milledgeville and destruction of the charcoal works and foundries at Griswoldsville is confirmed. The panic created both in Georgia and South Carolina by the march of the irresistible conqueror is something which has had no parallel during the war. A levy en masse of the Georgia and South Carolina militia has been ordered, and desperate efforts are being made to concentrate at Augusta an army sufficient to present some opposition to Sherman's advancing columns.

The Augusta Constitutionalist of the 22d says: A raiding party of the enemy tapped the road ten miles east of Macon, and destroyed a lumber train. The freight trains were turned back in haste. Heavy cannonading and musketry firing was heard east of Gordon. It was supposed General Wayne, at Gordon, had been attacked. Milledgeville has been entirely evacuated by our forces. Before the enemy entered everything of value was brought away.

The Augusta Dispatch of the 21st says: The movement of Sherman on Milledgeville was a feint for the purpose of concentrating our forces there, and the raid on Centralville was for the purpose of keeping them there whilst the whole force of the enemy moves upon and captures Augusta and Savannah.

The Augusta Constitutionalist gives the progress of the column under Slocum. About 10,000 cavalry visited Madison on the Georgia State road, burning it on the 19th. On the 20th an engine was sent up the road and found the enemy at Buckhead, eleven miles from Augusta. On the 19th some of our men were seventy-five miles from Augusta, probably a raiding party.

The Augusta Chronicle of the 20th says: A large cavalry force left Greenville, S. C., bound across the country, in the direction of Atlanta, with the view to cut off the Yankee column moving down the Georgia road in this direction. It is said that Breckinridge was to leave upper East Tennessee with his troops on the 12th for the Georgia line. With Hood in his rear and Breckinridge on his flank and 30,000 veterans in his front, Sherman cannot escape.

The Augusta Constitutionalist says: As we write, the glad and familiar shout of veteran troops arriving from the South Carolina depot, comes up from the street. If Sherman retreats this way he will hear the whistle of bullets from trusty guns which have often been pointed at fanatics on the banks of the Potomac and the James. Before our readers see this, other glad shouts will be heard in our streets.

The Macon Confederacy of the 20th says: Gen. Hardee arrived this morning, and Beauregard will probably be here to-morrow.

Since the date of the above, communication with the East has been cut off by Sherman, and both Hardee and Beauregard left far in the rear.

Governor Brown, Dick Taylor and Beauregard were reported as at Macon on the 22d.

Richmond papers of Friday and Saturday say, we have encouraging news from Georgia, but will not print it. Still they assure their readers that official advices from Georgia are as favorable as they could expect.

New York, Nov. 29th.

The Herald's Washington special says: Information is received there of the formation of a peace party in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi, favoring the re-admission of those States into the Union.

A small engagement took place on Sunday at Moorfield, West Virginia, in which the rebels lost twenty men. It is also said that 1,500 rebels made their appearance at New Creek.

The Times' special says: Col. Baker, on the 4th instant, informed Gen. Dix of a plot to burn New York, and a man named Ward, cognizant of the plot, was arrested and sent to Fort Lafayette. On the day after the election he was released, and has not been seen since.

Nashville, Nov. 28th.

No dispatches from Hood's army or our front since yesterday afternoon. Hood made an assault on the works at Columbia, on South Duck River on Saturday, and was badly repulsed. A small portion of rebel cavalry succeeded in crossing Duck River. Hood has made other developments of his plans, but thus far has accomplished nothing, further than occupying some of his dear friends. The military situation is satisfactory to the authorities. The impression gains ground that Hood will go east across the Chattanooga road, possibly with the hope of accomplishing something by co-operation with Breckinridge.

New York, Nov. 29th.

The Commercial's Fort Worth correspondent says: It has been known to Grant that an entire rebel corps has been detached from Lee's army and sent south, probably to meet Sherman, and its place taken by two divisions of Early's army. The rebel Admiral Buchanan is to be sent to Fort Warren.

The army correspondent of the Tribune says: Guns have been sent to the front which will throw shells into Richmond from our nearest positions. The shell is inflammable to an extraordinary degree. It is thought the rebels will be burned out with them.

An attempt to fire the International Hotel was made last night.

Wheeling, Va., Nov. 29th.

The enemy under Gen. Payne, surprised, captured and burned New Creek, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, yesterday. They sent a force of about 300 to Piedmont, but were stubbornly opposed by a company of the 6th West Virginia, who fought them three hours, when they retreated on the Elk Garden road. The damage to the railroad at Piedmont is very slight. Communication between this point and Cumberland is re-established.

New York, Nov. 29th.

The Tribune's special says: It is affirmed that the secessionists here are in possession of important news from Sherman, to the effect that his cavalry had reached and surrounded Millan and held the place until the infantry advance came up and released about two-thirds of our prisoners confined there, the remainder had been removed farther south before Sherman arrived.

The Augusta Constitutionalist of the 22d says: People have cut down trees to impede Sherman's march, and if possible, burn everything that man or beast can eat, and drive their stock into the swamps. It says: Troops have already arrived from Virginia and more are on the way. A days delay would be fatal to Sherman.

Local Matters.

A HARD CUSTOMER AND ONE STILL HARDER TO BE ACCOMMODATED.—Having occasion to visit the City recently, and while making a few purchases at one of the stores therein located, we became a reluctant eye-witness to the following:

A lady stepped up to the counter and enquired for a pair of shoes.

The polite and accommodating clerk immediately produced a number of pairs of the article asked for, and was discounting upon the quality of the shoes to the best of his ability, when his customer, selecting the style particularly suiting her fancy, requested the clerk to enumerate the sizes he had.

Our friend immediately and with the most gracious smile, informed the lady that he had them varying in size from 2's to 8's.

The lady, in a tone of bitter disappointment, said that none would answer: they were not large enough. Whereupon the clerk, good humoredly, replied: "Madam, you can take the box and try that on!"

We didn't see the lady remain many minutes.

PREPARATIONS FOR CHRISTMAS.—The Good Templars at Camp Douglas are to give a "Grand Ball" on Christmas eve, Dec. 24th, '64. A competent Committee has been appointed to perfect and carry out the arrangements for a social time generally, and all Good Templars are especially invited to attend. This is but putting into practice, in one sense, the true intent and meaning of this institution—the promotion of harmony, good will and friendship between the members of the Order. Besides striving for the abolishment of intemperance from our midst, the mingling freely and fraternally at the social reunions of the Lodge, they will conduce to the unanimity of thought, feeling and effect, necessary to the success, stability and permanency of the Order and the cause in which we are so earnestly striving to advance. Good Templars, go on—God bless and crown with success your efforts in a work so noble and praiseworthy.

The wolves are committing serious depredations on Smith's Fork, seven miles south-east of Bridger, U. T. On the night of the 23d inst. they killed several horses and young cattle. Persons living in that vicinity affirm that hundreds of these animals prowl around the farms during the night. The recent storms in the mountains have forced them into the valleys in search of food—hence their daring raids. Trapping and hunting them are amusements in that locality now-a-days.

Gen. Connor, accompanied by Capt. C. H. Hempstead of his staff, arrived in the city last evening at 5 o'clock.

THE YREKA UNION OF NOVEMBER 16TH RELATES THE FOLLOWING:

About 7 o'clock last Thursday evening while Nick Connor, who resides at Cottonwood Gulch, about five miles from town, was cooking his supper, two men, one a large sized, the other a small man, disguised, entered the cabin and presenting a pistol and knife at him, demanded his money. He gave them all he had, $100. They asked him if he had any more. He said he had, at a cabin about a mile off. They asked him if any one lived in the cabin. He replied in the negative. They then put a rope around his neck and told him to lead the way to the cabin, reminding him that if he betrayed them they would kill him. After scrambling through the brush and over logs for some time, they arrived in the rear of the cabin, when the robbers again questioned Connor as to whether any one lived there, again reminding him that his life would pay the forfeit if he betrayed them. He told them that if any one was in the cabin they had come since an hour or two before night, at which time he passed the cabin. They then proceeded cautiously, the large man holding the rope and proceeding by the side of Connor, holding in one hand a huge knife, the small man a little behind, carrying a six-shooter. Connor kept close to the cabin, in order to prevent the robbers from seeing the light, should there be any, knowing that a crack under the door would reveal it. He reached the door a little in advance of the men holding the rope, and, suddenly raising the latch and throwing his right shoulder against the door, fell into the cabin. His sudden movement caused the robber to let go his hold of the rope. As Connor fell the one with the pistol fired two shots at him, but fortunately neither took effect. The inmates of the cabin—a man and a boy—were aroused, and the robbers retreated. Connor says it was then that he fully comprehended his narrow escape and fortunate deliverance, and he decidedly "weakened" for a few minutes. There was no weapon in the house, but the boy recollected that there was an axe under the bed and another one at the wood pile.

Fearing that the robbers might visit the house of Graham, a short distance away, armed with axes, the three sallied out and soon reached Graham's house, where they found all safe. In the morning the robbers were tracked to a thicket near the cabin where they had robbed Connor, where it was evident they had previously left their boots. They were then tracked down the road toward the Oak Grove Race Course, which they seemed to have crossed by following an old wagon road. Officers of this city were notified of the affair early in the morning, and Sheriff Crooks immediately started for Scott Valley, the supposed direction the robbers had taken. Up to the present time no clue has been obtained as to the whereabouts of the robbers. They are doubtless a portion of an organized band making their way to the northern portion of California to waylay and rob.

"Our children will have the immense tax on their hands," said an American gentleman. "Oh, horrible!" exclaimed an elderly lady; "what a blessing it is that we have nails on ours!"
